

Individual Reflection, WEEK 2

Linnéa Fransson

- what do I want to learn or understand better?

We still haven't started with our project yet. So the things I want to improve or learn, haven't changed since last week. I want to improve my coding, since doing this is new to me. I'm also looking forward to learn more about Scrum and the working process. It will be interesting to set up our own user stories after listening to this week's lectures. I also really liked the lecture with Jonas from Husqvarna, and hoping for that knowledge from this course can be used in the future.

- how can I help someone else, or the entire team, to learn something new?

I have taken some courses in software and can support the team with my knowledge in coding. I will always do my best and try to learn as much as I can! But with my background from Industrial Engineering and Management, I can hopefully give another perspective on things. I have had a lot of contact with different companies before and can maybe see what kind of features who brings value to them. As I have been trying to do this week, I want to continue to bring new ideas and help our group to solve problems.

- what is my contribution towards the team's use of Scrum?

Since we haven't started the sprints yet, I haven't got so much to say about it. I'm just curious to get a greater understanding of scrum and be able to learn about it from implementing it on our own project!

- what is my contribution towards the team's deliveries?

This week, I have been engaged in the meetings with the team. I have been participating in discussions within switching our idea and moving the project forward. I also contacted some possible stakeholders. Me and Rebecka had the responsibility to sum up all the thoughts to our business model canvas, after discussing it together in the team.
