

Individual Reflection - Rebecka Jakobsson

I think that it's been a great first week of the course and that it's going to be really fun to work with students from another program. I look forward to getting to learn more about how to work in a project when it comes to programming since all projects I've done during my years at Chalmers has been part of economical courses. I want to learn more about what it actually means to work with Scrum and how to do that from different places. I also look forward to work on something that can end up being useful for someone. I hope that I can help the team with the organization of the project and of course by programming. At the same time, I think that the IT students are a bit better at the technical parts. Hopefully we will catch up with them during the project and in the meantime contribute in other ways. Since we haven't started to use Scrum yet I can't say anything about my contribution towards the team's use of it. This week I've contributed with ideas for the project as well as for the social contract. I've also been part of leading the discussions we've had on Zoom to make our meetings more efficient. The team seems really ambitious and everybody has been part of the discussions and in making sure that we meet our goals.
