

Tina individual reflection 2020-03-27

What do I want to learn or understand better?

So far we have begun to create a social contract. The idea is to add more topics and guidelines as we develop as a group and get introduced to new challenges. In the following weeks I therefore would like to observe how we as a team realise things we could have added to the contract earlier and take those notes to the next project I will participate in.

Furthermore I would like to understand the project better and together with my teammates create a more clear picture of the product we are building.

How can I help someone else, or the entire team, to learn something new?

As we make contact with a potential stakeholder, I will ask relevant questions, listen to his or her ideas and take notes so the entire team will get a better understanding of what we will be doing. By doing this we hopefully will get a picture of what our common goal is.

I can also use my previous experiences from other courses and share the knowledge I got from them. Both courses within programming but also the two courses I have taken where a project has been the examination.

What is my contribution towards the team's use of Scrum?

So far we have not had a sprint or the chance to use scrum. My contribution towards the team's use of Scrum could therefore be to read as much as I can, in the next few days, about how it works so that using it in the future will be more natural. By doing this the focus will, in the future, be more on actually experiencing the scrum work style than worrying about doing it wrong or not having enough substrate to even use it properly.

What is my contribution towards the team's deliveries?

So far we have all come up with ideas about what we potentially could develop and for whom it would create value for. I have been part of this discussion and presented the idea to the examiners to get feedback.

Furthermore I have contacted a café that could be a stakeholder depending on what they answer and how we decide to move forward with our idea.

I have also contributed to the social contract by adding some ideas of how to work together.